Bronkar Lee

Bronkar Lee is a keynote speaker, author, and leading authority on leadership presence and human connection. He helps leaders align their teams, build trust, and create cultures where people and performance thrive.

Before stepping onto the keynote stage, Bronkar spent nearly three decades captivating audiences around the world as a professional entertainer, musician, and live performance innovator. He has delivered thousands of live performances, appeared on The Tonight Show, performed in a Super Bowl commercial, entertained audiences at Madison Square Garden, and created digital content viewed billions of times. His career has taken him from street performer to Swiss circus ringmaster, to a headlining performer aboard Disney Cruise Lines, and onto stages around the world, giving him a rare understanding of what it truly takes to capture attention, earn trust, and move people to action.

Today, Bronkar combines the art of performance with the science of human connection through his signature framework, The Five BEATS of Resonance. As the creator of the Resonant Leadership Methodology, he equips leaders with practical tools to elevate their presence, inspire ownership, and transform groups of individuals into connected, high-performing teams.

His keynote presentations blend live music, audience participation, storytelling, and research-backed insights into experiences audiences don't simply watch, they feel. Organizations don't bring Bronkar in simply to deliver a keynote. They bring him in to shift the energy, set the tone, and give leaders practical tools that continue to resonate long after the applause ends.
